Dear Toni:

Upon receipt of your short note concerning the asbestos situation on the B1 level, I researched what information we have sent you regarding A.C.M. (Asbestos-Containing Material). I am enclosing a copy of a June 15, 1988 letter that Gus Preschle sent you concerning the fact that there is asbestos-containing fireproofing material on the B1 subgrade level in your leasehold area. I have also been advised that recently there was a bit of damage to this fireproofing which was the result of stock piling of material up to the structural steel.

Please be advised that under New York City Fire Laws, you can only stock pile material to within 18 inches of the sprinkler system. It is apparent that your operating people violated this regulation.

By copy of this letter, I am requesting that our Fire Safety people inspect your premises and give you a report with respect to the storage of material in a sprinklered area. In addition, your work force should be advised that under no circumstances are they to damage or dislodge any of the fireproofing on the structural steel members in the ceiling. If you have any other questions on this, please feel free to call me or Frank Boyce, our Asbestos Abatement expert (466-8227).

Sincerely,
